

The start to this summer has really slowed down. Unfortunately, we have had to cancel several events including the Fourth of July get together. We are slowly opening back up as allowed by the County.

We are still moving forward with projects and things at the Yesteryear museum. We are in the process of getting high speed internet and Wi-Fi here at the complex. The mowing and upkeep of the grounds is a continual battle. Thanks to all the volunteers who have helped with this. With the addition of the new mower part of this is easier. We have had a couple more Boy Scouts out looking for Eagle Scout projects. It is always great to see the younger generation looking around here.

After the shut down, repairs and upkeep of the equipment are still going on. Ron Gross has been working on the combine to get it ready for wheat harvest. He has put in lots of hours over several days to insure everything is up and running.

In the evening there have been a lot of people from KOA out to walk and take pictures. The Church is a favorite. So if you haven't been out for some time come out and enjoy the fresh air and sunshine and see the improvements in things out here.
